Article 13 (Regulations for Submission of English Extended Version Manuscripts)

1. Scope and Requirements

This regulation applies when a manuscript originally published in a Northeast Asian language (e.g., Korean, Japanese, Chinese, etc.) is to be expanded and republished in English for the purpose of enhancing international visibility.

- ① An English extended version must not be a simple English translation; it must be an expanded version based on the original manuscript, offering an international perspective.
- ② The manuscript may include existing data (such as research methods and results), but must include additional scholarly contributions, such as new analyses and discussions.
- ③ For the English extended version, in accordance with Article 9 of the 「Regulations of Article Editing」 (Review-Form Reflection Review), authors must submit a statement detailing revisions made in response. This statement will be reviewed and retained by the editorial office.
- ④ If the paper is submitted merely as a translation with the same structure as the original, written consent from the original publishing society must be obtained; without such consent, it shall be regarded as duplicate publication.

2. Submission Procedure

- ① In the designated section of the submission application form, authors must clearly state the purpose for republishing a manuscript originally published in a Northeast Asian language (e.g., Korean, Japanese, Chinese, etc.) in English.
- ② When submitting, it must be submitted together with the previously published original paper.

3. Editorial Board Review

- ① The submission of English manuscripts based on a manuscript published in a Northeast Asian language (e.g., Korean, Japanese, Chinese, etc.) shall be determined through review by the Editorial Board.
- ② The review shall be communicated to all members of the Editorial Board via email, and the submission shall be rejected if more than half of the Board members oppose it.
- ③ The review period shall be at least three days, and all opposing opinions must be submitted in writing and retained in the records.

4. Acknowledgment

The following should be included in a footnote at the bottom of the first page of the manuscript.

“This article is an expanded and revised English version of an article originally published in [Journal Title, Volume (No.), Year of Publication] in a Northeast Asian language (e.g., Korean, Japanese, Chinese, etc.). This English version has undergone review by the Editorial Board and Double-Blind Peer Review to enhance its international visibility.”
